

Partnership Survey

One of the key guiding principles of A Face to Reframe is partnership. Our work does not exist without host organizations inviting and advising us, helping to facilitate the project, and committing to sustain the use of photography in community development. Therefore, it is important that we are a good match! Please take a few moments to answer the following questions to help us both evaluate our future collaboration.

1. Please describe your organization, including your mission statement and current strategic objectives.
2. How does your organization view transformative development work and address poverty?
3. Please describe the population you serve and, specifically, the population you have in mind for this project.
4. How will our partnership further your objectives for this population group?
5. Do you collaborate with other community groups and/or can you imagine doing so for this project?
6. What are the particular concerns, security issues, and other causes for caution you have related to a project of this sort?
7. What sources of funding would your organization be able to contribute?
8. Would you be committed to sustaining a photography element to your work with our consultation and ongoing involvement?
